READING COMPREHENSION: Read the passage below, and then answer the questions that follow. Questions may refer to what is stated or implied, or to any introductory information that may be included.

The passage is adapted from Moby Dick by Herman Melville.

The chief mate of the Pequod was Starbuck, a native of Nantucket, and a Quaker by descent. He was a long, earnest man, and though born on an icy coast, seemed well adapted to endure hot latitudes, his flesh being hard as twice-baked biscuit. Transported to the Indies, his live blood would not spoil like bottled ale. He must have been born in some time of general drought and famine, or upon one of those fast days for which his state is famous. Only some thirty arid summers had he seen; those summers had dried up all his physical superfluosness. But this, his thinness, so to speak, seemed no more the token of wasting anxieties and cares, than it seemed the indication of any bodily blight. It was merely the condensation of the man. He was by no means ill-looking; quite the contrary. His pure tight skin was an excellent fit; and closely wrapped up in it, and embalmed with inner health and strength, like a revivified Egyptian, this Starbuck seemed prepared to endure for long ages to come, and to endure always, as now; for be it Polar snow or torrid sun, like a patent chronometer, his interior vitality was warranted to do well in all climates. Looking into his eyes, you seemed to see there the yet lingering images of those thousand-fold perils he had calmly confronted through life. A staid, steadfast man, whose life for the most part was a telling pantomime of action, and not a tame chapter of sounds. Yet, for all his hardy sobriety and fortitude, there were certain qualities in him which at times affected, and in some cases seemed well nigh to overbalance all the rest. Uncommonly conscientious for a seaman, and endowed with a deep natural reverence, the wild watery loneliness of his life did therefore strongly incline him to superstition; but to that sort of superstition, which in some organizations seems rather to spring, somehow, from intelligence than from ignorance. Outward portents and inward presentiments were his. And if at times these things bent the welded iron of his soul, much more did his far-away domestic memories of his young Cape wife and child, tend to bend him still more from the original ruggedness of his nature, and open him still further to those latent influences which, in some honest-hearted men, restrain the gush of dare-devil daring, so often evinced by others in the more perilous vicissitudes of the fishery. "I will have no man in my boat," said Starbuck, "who is not afraid of a whale." By this, he seemed to mean, not only that the most reliable and useful courage was that which arises from the fair estimation of the encountered peril, but that an utterly fearless man is a far more dangerous comrade than a coward.

25. According to the first paragraph, which word best describes Starbuck's personality?

- A. goofy
- B. jolly
- C. serious
- D. dour

26. How does the narrator describe Starbuck's physical characteristics?

- A. thin, but healthy
- B. thin, but in a sickly manner
- C. obese and ill-looking
- D. obese, but only slightly

27. The narrator compares Starbuck's ability to adjust to any weather conditions that the ship might encounter to what?
- A. a dead Egyptian
  - B. an uneducated sailor
  - C. a well-made watch
  - D. a run-down neighborhood
28. How does Starbuck compare with other sailors?
- A. He is as amoral as the rest of sailors.
  - B. He is a strong, principled man.
  - C. He is cowardly and fears the slightest things.
  - D. He is tyrannical and overbearing with his subordinates.
29. In the sentence "Outward portents and inward presentiments were his," what is the most likely meaning of presentiments?
- A. happenstance
  - B. premonitions
  - C. fortunes
  - D. gifts
30. Which characteristic of sailors does Starbuck require of his men?
- A. apprehension
  - B. dependability
  - C. conceit
  - D. ignominy
